ITALIAN MATCH

Gaspar is a renowned Parisian artist who is in high demand. Yet, in this month of April, all he wants is to go to Rome for a few days. There, sitting in front of a café and a chessboard one morning, he meets Marya, a Hungarian woman and a formidable adversary. Their story blossoms on the chessboard, before taking wing elsewhere. Under the attentive eye of Giordano Bruno, whose statue surveys Campo de' Fiori, their love will assert itself, as unrelenting as a checkmate.

› ANGÉLIQUE

ANGÉLIQUE

Christmas 2021, Paris. Matthias Taillefer wakes up in the hospital after a heart attack. A stranger is sitting by his bed playing the cello. Her name is Louise Collange, a student volunteer who plays for the patients. When she learns that Matthias is a cop, she asks him to take on a special case. Hesitant at first, he finally agrees to help her. Thus begins an extraordinary investigation where the secret resides in the life we might have lived, the love we might have known, the place we hope to find...

MUSIC, A FIGHT FOR LIFE

World-renowned violinist Zhang Zhang gives a daring account of the violence of the Cultural Revolution. Born to a musician father and to a star actress of propaganda films, she was soon forced into a life of exile with her parents, forced to say goodbye to her homeland and her brother. In this family where music counted above all else, Zhang's despotic father made her practice for hours, to the point of making her hate the violin... Until the day it became her way to emancipation.

SISTER DEBORAH

SISTER DEBORAH

In the 1930s in East Africa, a vast movement of conversion to Christianity is underway. Reverend Marcus preaches about the imminent coming of a black savior. But Sister Deborah, a prophetess and miracle-worker, proclaims that the Messiah will be a black woman, destabilizing the men and the colonizing power. At the edges of a historical and fantastic tale, the French-Rwandan author masterfully recounts these power relationships while giving the women the strength of the undefeated.

LA VIE CLANDESTINE

THE CLANDESTINE LIFE

This novel traces the paths of characters who have but one thing in common: a clandestine life. On one hand, members of the far-left group "Action directe," which carried out dozens of attacks between 1979 and 1987. On the other hand, Monica Sabolo, raised in a bourgeois family ruled by secrets and lies, in the shadow of the occult activities of her father, who died without a word. As she makes her way through her investigation, she must confront the ghosts and the unspoken words of her past.

MODY

The novel featured in the Netflix series of the same name, which retraces the love story of a serial-killing couple operating in France in the 1970s.

} LES PAPILLONS NOIRS

BLACK BUTTERFLIES

This is the passionate and depraved love story of Albert and Solange, two hairdressers who grow up together in the post-WWII years in France and go on to become a serial-killing couple operating in the 1970s. The book is featured in the hit Netflix series of the same name, but can also be read entirely independently. A sexy, dark, French version of Bonnie and Clyde, with feminist undertones, and a perfect example of a noir novel.

CONFESSIONS OF A FORGER

THE HIDDEN FACE OF THE ART MARKET

Forgeries are everywhere in the art world: museums, exhibition halls, galleries... The reason is simple: these masterpieces are made with the complicity of the masters themselves (sometimes), of the family of the artists when they are deceased (very often), of experts and gallery owners from all over the world (all the time). Eric Piedoie Le Tiec: 30 years of forgery and 10 years of prison. The "emperor" has made tens of thousands of forgeries, which have enriched a large number of art dealers.

GAËLLE JOSSE

The final confrontation between a daughter and her father at the twilight of his life.

LA NUIT DES PÈRES

NIGHT OF THE FATHERS

After a call from her brother Olivier, Isabelle returns to the village in the Alps where they were born. Their father, a former mountain guide, is ailing; he is losing his memory. She has been gone for many years, and she is nervous about returning. This is her last chance to understand her destructive and difficult father. Together, the three of them will untangle their familial history while the shadow of History hovers, like the eagles flying near the peaks that their father loved above all else.

} AVANT QUE J'OUBLIE

BEFORE I FORGET

On one hand, there's the violent and alcoholic one-legged colossus. On the other, the self-taught reader of Oriental spirituality with a frustrated artistic sensibility. When her father Janus dies, the daughter starts to go through his house, an unbelievable mess, a cave worthy of Ali Baba, which becomes an infinite network of signs and memories. One day, a letter arrives that tells her the whole truth about this beloved father whom, despite the social distance, she so closely resembles.

FIRE EVERYWHERE

Laetitia was born 37 minutes before the explosion at Chernobyl. Despite her excellent grades and much to her parents' dismay, she spends her time at the Snowhall in Thermes-les-Bains. She lives at La Cave, where she listens to Nick Cave, obsessed by SUVs and the ongoing climate crisis. Laetitia lives in the Lorraine region, where the State has decided to bury all of France's radioactive waste. So along with her gang, she leads a spectacular first initiative: a mere prologue to the fiery grand finale.

JEAN-LUC AND JEAN-CLAUDE

Jean-Luc and Jean-Claude live in the same home for mentally handicapped people in a little town in Northern France. Every Thursday, they are allowed to go have a drink (non-alcoholic, of course) at the local café. But one stormy day, things take an unusual turn. In the pouring rain, a blond guy takes them for a drive. Back at the home, people are getting worried. Where are they going? Nobody knows. And what does that guy want with two vulnerable souls like Jean-Luc and Jean-Claude?
