How far will you go for peace?

Upon graduating from a prestigious state-run engineering school, Second Lieutenant Georges Kabla interns at a radio center that turns out to be a French intelligence surveillance outpost. There, he is tasked with setting up sophisticated facial recognition software, nicknamed Death Face. But when it stumbles across a highly confidential file, the special advisor to the Director orders Kabla to bring everything to a halt. Thousands of miles away, Special Forces Captain Maxime Barelli is carrying out black ops missions, eliminating French jihadists who cannot be allowed to set foot in their native lands. She discovers that a deadly weapon is threatening France...
