A chapter book that captures the daily lives of 7-10 year-olds with unerring humor!

Forced to move from her mom's house to her dad's, Lou forgets her head on the dining room table one morning when she heads out to school. Well, what did you expect? She has so much to think about! Her classmates are shocked to see her headless. Meanwhile, back at home, her head winds up facing down a burglar, whom she only just escapes with her aged neighbor's help. From then on, Lou's head and body experience extraordinary adventures on their tireless quest to be reunited. With help from friends, her parents, and two migrant children met by chance in a potato truck, Lou is finally able to put her head back on her shoulders and get a fresh start, relieved of her burden of anger and sorrow.
