The journey of a man in search of a host land who fought for the rights of his people and had to flee his country to escape persecution.

Seidou had never thought about leaving Guinea, until he was forced to flee at the age of 33 to save his own life. He had a high school education, a good job, a happy life. When persecutions against the Fula people during the presidential elections, Seidou became one of the leaders of a protest movement that was violently repressed by the powers that be. With his life in danger, he has no choice but to flee. He plans to leave for Bamako, wait for things to settle down, and then return. But things do not go as planned... Niger, Libya, Sicily... the sadly classic journey begins. On European soil, another epic that begins, one often forgotten: that of the application for asylum.
