All it takes is a second for your life to change forever. That's the first lesson that Nita, a young Native American girl, will learn when she's kidnapped on her thirteenth birthday... oppressive thriller for a hair-raising reading experience.

Nita, a young Native American girl, has been kidnapped by a serial killer. She finds herself tied up in a hunter's cabin deep in the Canadian forest. She manages to untie herself and runs away in the snow, her abductor close on her heels. Just as he is about to catch her, she hears a scream: his leg has been caught in a bear trap. With only three matches and two bars of chocolate, how will Nita survive? A race against the clock starts for the police, who only have a few clues at their disposal. The chances of finding the victim alive are decreasing by the minute...
