What if the next generation changed the world? Introducing a new adventurous series that reflects on the big ecological and media-related questions of today!

18-year-old Marie has just lost her mother in a car accident. While sorting through her things, Marie learns that her mother, a journalist, had been writing a story about a next generation smartphone company and a mysterious man connected to it... Was her mother's death really an accident? With the help of Leo, a young hacker, and her godmother, an Italian journalist, Marie takes over the investigation and discovers that her mother was on the brink of exposing a rare mineral trafficking ring in Africa.
