A charming tribute to feisty grandmothers and intergenerational relationships.

A grandmother decides that it's time for her granddaughter to learn to ride a bicycle without stabilizers. Even after several accidents and a temper tantrum, grandma will not let her granddaughter off the hook!

That night, the little girl thinks about the quiet tears she saw rolling down her grandmother's cheeks... and then she understands. The little girl decides, in turn, to teach her grandmother to ride her grandfather's old bicycle... although maybe with stabilizers.
