The heart-wrenching quest of two women, each linked to the memory of H el ene, a child hidden during the Occupation. A beautiful novel with two voices responsible for the memory, the paths of resilience, and the portrait of a Righteous woman.

The 1980s: Blanche is enjoying a peaceful retirement in the sun when, one day, a 20-year-old stranger knocks on her door. Her name is Pauline. Her mother, H el ene, has just died and she is frustrated as she knows nothing about her mother's past. Blanche knows the story, which is also her own. In 1942, she saved H el ene and other orphans from the camps and the Nazi threat. At great risk. Pauline goes with Blanche on a pilgrimage walking in her mother's footsteps. Pauline needs the return to her roots but for Blanche it revives the heartbreaking memory of a secret passion.
