Women's actual accounts of everyday sexism and harassment out in the streets, adapted into comics.

After a previous collection in 2014, Thomas Mathieu returns with more women's voices from the Crocodiles Project, this time with artist Juliette Boutant. The authors again depict stalkers as bright green crocodiles, an aesthetic choice that adds force and impact to realistic settings, inviting readers to see things through women's eyes and raising awareness about the abnormality of some domineering, predatory male behaviors. An eye-opening book, more essential than ever in our day and age, to help alter perceptions and behaviors and combat sexism in all its forms .
