120 editorial cartoons from around the world take stock of the #MeToo movement.

In 2017, the #MeToo movement called for the voices of victims of sexual harassment to be heard. Millions of women around the world spoke as one, testifying to the abuse they had suffered. What conclusions can be drawn today from this episode?

This work, prefaced by journalist Laure Adler and conceived in partnership with Amnesty International, collects 120 international editorial cartoons selected by Cartooning for Peace that provide an overview of women's rights in a post-#MeToo world. While doing our part to denounce restrictions on women and violence against them, we support feminist struggles and the decisive stakes involved.
