No one is born a woman. You become one, with help from kindly female figures who've lived through great struggles.

Growing up and asserting yourself, combating stereotypes, girl power and black power: sometimes, starting high school can prove to be a turning point!

A young girl and her friends learn about great-souled women and adopts them as models: Rosa Parks, Simone Veil, Emma Gonzalez, Greta Thunberg...

Their struggles echo issues of our time: the superficiality of popularity, the power of rumor, gender equality...

Second volume of Salomé et les femmes de parole (Salomé and the Women of Their Word).
