The delightful tale of a dad who is addicted to internet...

A young penguin is disheartened to see his constantly-connected father always staring at his screen, with little inclination to spending time with his family. But one day, disaster comes calling: Daddy has lost his internet connection. Looking for a signal, he wanders further and further away onto the ice until suddenly, "Craaaack!" a piece of ice breaks off, and Daddy floats away...

A delightful story served chilled by Philippe de Kemmeter, whose sense of humour is unleashed in the text as well as the illustrations.
