One evening in a Parisian restaurant...

Couples are having dinner. Each is at a different stage in their relationship.

Those two are on their first real date, though they've logged a lot of screen time already.

That guy's a regular and a notorious womanizer. (Should someone tell his new one-night stand?)

That girl can't leave her lover, though she knows he's cheating.

That woman is going to tell her husband she's pregnant.

That couple's just had a baby.

There's a wife who's finally decided to make her husband listen.

A widower who can't get used to the fact that his wife is gone forever.

In the confined atmosphere of this small Parisian bistro, they study one another, but above all they LIVE.

A true, rich, and moving kaleidoscope.
