Toward a society where men and women are truly equal.

Despite the scope of the feminist mobilization and political promises, inequality persists.

In this manifesto, Céline Piques draws connections between canonical feminist texts and accounts of struggles in order to invite critical thinking about patriarchal society and explore potential avenues of concrete action toward developing a radically feminist politics.

Analyzing the interdependencies of capitalism and the patriarchy as well as the predatory systems they feed, Piques defines the conditions of genuine sexual, reproductive, domestic, and economic emancipation for women.
