10 questions and 4 activities for learning about threats to animals and how to save them.

Bees aren't the only endangered insects, alas, and even extinct animals have left many traces behind. Dinosaurs aren't poised to make a comeback, though, and there are things you can do to protect the animals that are still around. In the activities section, make fossils for futur archeologists, build a birdhouse your feathered friends, and grow flowers to help out pollinators.
