An invitation to find your own voice and let it ring out, so no one else will try to speak for you.

When No-No the Buffalo is born one brilliant autumn day, it's clear he's not like the other calves. His coat is so thick you can't see his nose or mouth for the fur on his face--only his two beady eyes! His parents wonder what to name their baby--Buffalson? Buffalot? Buffy?--but the only thing his eyes seem to say is "No, no!" The name winds up sticking. But once he learns to talk, is "No!" all he's ever going to say? An unexpected encounter with a little lobster and his claws may clear up the mystery...
