An endearing fable about sticking together and welcoming others, illustrating the famous maxim, "strength in numbers."

Once upon a time, there was a young farmer who was kicked out of her own house. So she made herself a cozy new home in a little wooden caravan, where she lived with her kid goat and her cat. Until one day, a squirrel came knocking, and then a little hen, and then an elderly horses... Every time, the kind farmer welcomed them with open arms and an open door. With each new arrival, the little caravan grew more cramped, but the more, the merrier!
