A far-reaching, fascinating, funny graphic novel about anthropology.

This nonfiction graphic novel explores our relationship with our cousins, the apes. What can we learn from them? What do they tell us about ourselves and where we come from? Our evolutionary paths from a common ancestor obviously diverged, but by observing apes, are we looking at our past or a species parallel to our own? By meeting with primatologists and intellectuals (but also apes!), Aurel provides humorous answers to these questions.
