A child spends a day observing the world through his own eyes and a kitten's: sharing, playing games, discovering himself and others.

Rituals – waking, bathing, playing, – lend rhythm to the day, structuring the lives of toddlers... and kittens! This book makes its title its refrain, tossing in rhymes, musicality, and onomatopoeia. Contrasting the child's civilized, organized world with the cat's wilder one, turned towards nature, Elis Wilk alternates single pages devoted to a single character and his particular universe with two-page spreads that show how they're related. A well-constructed, highly visual picture book, showcasing simple geometric shapes and springtime colors in beautifully translucent layers.
