The final chapter in this realistic, ecologically-minded science fiction adventure series.

Winter, 2075: Europe is still a vast agricultural desert. The all-powerful corporation Diosynta exploits most of the land with its private army. But a network of activists called Resilience is fighting this totalitarian regime. Ellen and Adam of Resilience travel to a lab deep in the Arctic ice to destroy P.O.P.1, a harmful new species of transgenic plant secretly developed by Diosynta. Meanwhile, Adam's partner Agnes monitors the operation's progress from a distance. But Diosynta hasn't played its last card, and danger remains everywhere, especially as the secret mission gradually uncovers troubling political issues.
