Watch out! The ice caps are melting...

Drip drop, ice floe, drip drop! A little penguin and a young polar bear must face the truth: the ice caps are melting! So off they go to warn the whale, the beluga, the fur seals, the walrus – and all the animals living nearby. But none of them has a solution. Surely someone must know what to do?

In this picture book, Claire Garralon helps young readers learn about arctic animals, alerting them to an eco-system under attack and in dire need of preservation.
