Can't wait for the end of the world? A utopian, humanistic series that will bring a smile to your face.

Mollie is excited about the impending end of our civilization. She knows the planet is warming, animals are disappearing, and soon be no more natural resources to fuel our daily activities. Her loved ones would rather not to think about it... until the day it all happens. No more oil. Everyone turns to Mollie, but she has no idea how to save them. Just then, Oscar, an old family friend who happens to own a castle, intervenes. He's got plenty of room there, plus food and water; they're all welcome to join him. But the question still remains: now what?
