"A tender, delightful series about the little joys of family vacation: moments filled with freedom, frivolity, and simplicity. A treat for young and old alike!"

I'm Clovis and he's Whoops, my grandparents' dog. I love going to see Grampy and Grammy because they let me do all sorts of things my parents won't--and let me tell you, that list is as long as my arm! That must be what grandparents are for: letting you get away with everything!

With fond and funny words from Aurélie Valognes, whose fiction sells over a million copies every year, and has been translated into over fifteen languages, as well as sweet, mischievous drawings by François Ravard, a comics artist with over a dozen graphic novels to his name, including 2020's Nestor Burma.
