A YA novel about resilience and transcending your own limitations.

Almost every day since he was eight, Glenn has gone running with this dad and brothers down the coast of Sydney, Australia. But when their dad dies in a plane accident, everything comes crashing to a halt. Back in France and living with their mother's family, the brothers give up running—all except for Glenn, encouraged by his grandfather. Now that he's an adult, will he dare to register for the Sydney marathon?
