A moving story of great friendship among athletes in a recently reunited Germany.

November 1989: the fall of the Berlin Wall. Sixteen-year-old Wiebke Petersen is a high-level tower. In 1991, she joins a reunited Germany's first team for the world championships, where she will have to get to know her former opponents in order to form a united front despite the upheavals still rocking their country. An autobiographical story where the personal and the political intertwine.
