A delightfully subtle, off-the-wall picture book about differences and the importance of asserting yourself.

Monsieur Dezert lives alone in his ornamental bird shop, where people flock to find birds to decorate their heads. Unlike everyone else, he was not born with a plant on his head – he's unlucky enough to be bald. One day, he receives a delivery: a bird quite different from all the rest. A story about difference and the importance of self-affirmation.
