An entirely silent feat of narrative and artistic prowess: a love story told with humor and poetry.

Every morning, the fisherman takes his little skiff and goes off to work. But this morning, he's the one who gets caught! He gets picked up by an industrial fishing trawler – and somehow winds up crossing the Atlantic.

On the pebble beach at home, his wife is waiting. The village gossips are already predicting the fisherman's death, but the old witch who reads the crêpes has seen him in a vision, in Cuba. Convinced her man is still alive, this formidable woman from Brittany sets off on an improbable mission to save him.
