10 keys for a gender-neutral education free of stereotypes.

One of our society's major concerns is educating children equally, regardless of gender. As we know, gender inequalities set in from an early age. Bourdeverre-Veysière evinces real desire for openness with regard to sexes (and genders) by inviting reflection on the field of possibilities where respect and equality are concerned. An egalitarian society in which respect reigns supreme would in fact be a less violent society.
