This playful, original book, perfect for exploring, dreaming, and building, might just inspire an architectural calling in young readers!

In this fascinating and imaginative book, a community of animals commissions the whimsical architect Monsieur Anatole for some very peculiar projects: a house of glass for Pietro the parrot, one shaped like an animal for the gerbil, another like a bee for Boris the brown bear and pastry chef. Once these dwellings are done, Mr. Anatole visit his clients to make sure they're happy. Mischievous and whimsical, Loulendo and Mardesson explore various ways of inhabiting a home through meticulously detailed illustrations bursting with color that show off nature and its abodes in all their glory!
