Parents are weird! Selena's have suddenly decided that she will be an artist.

How do you stand up to parents who want you to become an artist, when all you want is to know who you are, deep down, like any other schoolgirl in the 21st century? And why not become a doctor or a lawyer, if that's what calls to you? A humorous, whimsical fable by Martin Page about the pressure parents bring to bear on a young schoolgirl. And how the daughter, wiser than her parents, simply wishes to "become herself."
