Nothing is off-limits in this visionary entrepreneur's account of his amazing career, spiritual awakening, and discovery of how to talk to the dead.

After a rocky education, Alain Cojean leaves his native Brittany for the capital. Bored at a law office, he works at McDonald's, climbing the ranks till he's head of R&D. His dream? To found a new kind of fast-food chain that offers fresh, quality, organic food and takes care of its employees. He launches thirty Cojean restaurants in Paris and London, plus the Feed Love Give foundation. This passionate entrepreneur's life crumbles when his staunchest supporter, his beloved mother, dies, but a famous psychic passes him messages from beyond. Having managed thousands of happy employees for almost two decades, Cojean leaves the corporate world. All proceeds from this book donated to charity.
