An actual book of DIY projects you won't need a drill or hammer for! Everyday materials and forgotten toys will come together to give children new stories to tell!

Martine Camillieri has devised a book of little DIY projects that children can easily make themselves with materials from around the house.

These 224 pages are arranged into three levels of difficulty. Children will find crafts projects of all sorts as they are guided along by amusing characters. Martine Camillieri offers up a hundred-odd creations from such objects as yogurt containers, cheese boxes, shampoo packets, wooden skewers, toothpicks, thumbtacks, and clothespins. The Big Book of Little DIY will help them make houses of all sorts (model apartments, eco-friendly cabins), and all the rooms to be found within (deluxe bathrooms, library nooks, sofa cubbies). And even the cities, monuments, and transportation that go with them (the giant train station, the skatepark, trucks)!
