Just what is having a job, not having a job, and being between jobs?

For the first time, a comics publisher (La Boîte à Bulles) and an educational publisher (Belin Éducation) have teamed up to offer a new series designed for high schoolers but accessible to broader audiences. Each volume uses funny, quirky examples to explain a topic from the Economics and Social Sciences study track.

At the end of each section, a summary reviews essential takeaways to be remembered.

The economics program for the last two years of secondary school include 4 and 5 themed booklets, respectively.

The rest of the secondary school Economics and Social Sciences program is available in the series "Sociology Comics" and "Economics and Sociology Comics."
