The comic that lifts the veil on the taboo of money in the couple, to end with the inequalities behind the candy pink myth.

What is the common ground between those who dream of the prince charming, feminists, housewives, single mothers and widows?

Before, during and after the couple, they pay the price: hair removal, contraception, distribution of expenses, career adjustments, parental responsibility... The bill is long, but invisible! Why does the ideal of the couple cost so much? To understand this, Lucile Quillet and Tiffany Cooper take us into a delirious and pop universe.
