A child gazes out the window, watching time go by. And so, readers discover the story of his life, from the smallest details to the biggest events.

Youn loves to count. After counting his fingers and toes, he goes further with the minutes, the hours, the days, the months, and finally, the years. Facing the window and gazing at the horizon, he watches the seasons go by. A whole life unfolds from the smallest details to the biggest events. Gazing, growing up, marveling: a delicate and poetic exploration of the passage of time.
