A mind-blowing story to be read in a single sitting, based on real events and featuring a cast of colorful characters.

When Captain Adhémar de Saint-Rémand and his assistant, Lieutenant Daphné Quenot, embark on an investigation involving trafficking in human fetuses, they are unaware that it will lead them to the turquoise waters of Barbados. Between morality and personal convictions, the two investigators will have to confront their limits. Laure and Colombe Bonnet are the winners of publisher Du Gros Caillou's second writing competition, sponsored by Pétronille Rostagnat. These two sisters love spinning tales where the dark side of human nature shows through, all while maintaining a lightness of tone.
