The choice of Anna Khachaturova, Editor

"Simon Johannin paints a portrait of a handful of boys crushed by the prison system, a heartfelt cry against the violence of the world."

A young boy brought down by a heartless penal system in 19th-century France. A young man with psychic powers who hears the dead boy's voice over a hundred years later, in the ruins of the penitentiary. A story of legacies, trauma, memory, and love, which must always triumph in the face of violence.
