The choice of Laurence Leclercq, Rights & Licensing Director

"He is a psychiatrist. He used to see patients in his office and led a mobile outreach team working with homeless people. In 2020, when COVID hit, video calls replaced in-person consultations. The outreach continued, but interactions became more difficult."

March, 2020: the world is in lockdown. In hospitals all over, decisions must be made, and quickly. On the frontlines, a psychiatrist divides his time between his mobile team, which roams the ghostly city looking for outcasts in need, and COVID units where the sick die alone, deprived of last rites.
