A deep dive into the mischievous world of childhood and its spirits.

Ever crossed paths with a spirit? Perhaps Soukapat and her annoying habit of making a mess? Woodsedge [Boud'bois], the oldest spirit in the world? Or else Stockingmuncher [Croque-chaussette], who'd better quit making those darn holes in the toes of our socks? And Potsinger [Chante-Marmite], or Shadowloo [l'Ombre des Toiletttes]? If not, you must be a grown-up, because kids run into them all the time. In this book, Esteban and Gayouchka, grownups though they are, nostalgically present an eclectic collection of spirits encountered during vacations spend with their grandma.
