The first-ever "zero waste, zero garbage" guide to taking action on a local scale.

Drawing on public feedback from France and abroad, the Zero Waste France Association puts forth in this book a complete and ambitious vision of the revolution that must happen for better waste management, detailing all the opportunities and obstacles that various people might encounter in trying to take action: responsibilities, costs, jobs, etc.

Rich with firsthand accounts, this book clearly and instructively presents steps that can be taken toward making your area zero waste. As such, it is a valuable resource for various local actors, and all those who wish to become involved in their efforts.
