After the commercial and critical success of the first volume, a new fascinating journey through 8 new women-led societies.

Patriarchal societies dominate the world, yet "a few communities continue to operate differently, with women holding key roles, such as managing wealth, organizing important ceremonies, and making decisions related to the family or the village. These societies preserve female authority despite the patriarchal environment surrounding them, and without reversing domination or placing women above men. Instead, these communities are run by women, each in its own way." – Nadia Ferroukhi, photographer and world reporter.
